Lääkärilehti in brief

The Finnish Medical Journal (Lääkärilehti) is by far the best way to reach doctors and health care professionals in Finland.

We offer a unique combination of quality and quantity. Our journal's print run is about 31,500, and it reaches almost all of the doctors in the country.

The popular newsletter is also sent to almost all doctors, and 37,5 per cent of recipients open the newsletter, which is an exceptionally high percentage.

In the Finnish Medical Journal and on its website you will reach customers in a highly trusted and respected environment. 83 per cent of our readers believe that our journal is useful. This is clearly higher than average for a professional journal.

The journal is a very highly respected source of professional knowledge. According to its readers, it excellently keeps up with the developments in medicine and health care in particular and also with new research data.

Its presence in daily clinical work is also praised.

It is a unique combination of respected scientific publication and topical journal.
